The Price of Survival

Survival demands payment.
It takes comfort, rest, and innocence.
It asks you to become harder
just to stay standing.
Some days survival feels like victory.
Other days it feels like loss.
But giving up costs more than surviving ever will.

I have lost pieces of myself
just trying to remain here.
Yet I am still breathing, still moving,
and that means the fight mattered.

Survival changes you,
but it also proves your strength.
